

Gareth's patience, humour and determination make his training not just informative and eye-opening but a genuine part of my day that I look forward to. His Public Relations and Communications training has enabled me to become a well-rounded Communications professional, with an array of tools, tips and tricks up my sleeve to thrive in the workplace.

With Gareth's guidance, I have been better equipped to handle and implement new Public Relations and Communication strategies within the team, making for a far more successful working environment. I have also had one-on-one sessions with Gareth, learning how to proof-read and copy edit which has proved invaluable and helped to dramatically improve my own writing as well as helping others.

I must also mention that I owe Gareth the greatest debt as he helped me believe in myself enough to freelance and even came up with the name for my new venture! If you are unsure what exactly it is you need, I recommend reaching out, as Gareth's finely tuned intuition and 360-approach will help you more than you know.

Louise Crawley – Communication Manager